The WorldWide English College Canon

The Canon Index: five divisions, every title, and what to read before, alongside and after each of them.

WEC Governance Series · First edition · 2026-09-04

62 titles in five divisions · 11 overlaps resolved

Document ID TRH4-FEFW-7H9X-4EMJ

WHAT A CANON IS

A library, not a list

A catalogue answers what could be published and what stops it. This index answers a harder question: when a learner enrolls, is everything they need already here, and does it hang together? A library where a reader has to guess what to open next is a shelf.

So every title states what should be read before it, what goes alongside it, and what follows. Those relationships are declared here and checked by a test: a title that pointed at a publication which does not exist would fail the build.

DIVISION	FOR	TITLES	PURPOSE
I · Student Learning Library	The learner	20	Everything an enrolled learner needs, from the coursebook they open on day one to the guide they revise from.
II · Teacher Library	The teacher	8	Everything required to plan, teach, assess and mark the programme.
III · Academic Reference Library	The examiner, the reviewer, the partner institution	10	The architecture of the qualification, for anyone who has to judge it rather than study it.
IV · Institutional Library	The institution, and whoever inherits it	14	How the College governs, publishes and accounts for itself.
V · Graduate & Professional Library	The graduate, the employer, the practising professional	10	What a learner needs after the programme, and what a professional needs beside it.

Where the canon stands

STATUS	TITLES	WHAT IT MEANS
PUBLISHED	13	Issued, with an artefact and a build script.
DERIVABLE	18	Every requirement met by material that exists. Editorial work only.
REQUIRES AUTHORIZING	15	Short of material, by a stated number.
REQUIRES GOVERNANCE	15	Blocked on an authority the Press does not hold.

Every catalogue title is placed in a division: 0 are unplaced. A publication that belonged to no division would be the thing this index exists to prevent.

THE EDITORIAL RULE

What is not a separate book

No book may duplicate another. Where material appears twice it is justified, referenced, or removed — and each of the 11 overlaps below is resolved one of those three ways, in the open.

A PRESS THAT PUBLISHES THE SAME RUBRIC THREE TIMES UNDER THREE TITLES HAS NOT PUBLISHED THREE BOOKS

Teacher's Guide

The Teacher's Edition already opens with a guide to using the book, and Teaching the IEFC is the handbook on teaching it. A third volume between them would be the same advice at a third length, and a teacher would have to guess which to open.

INTO

The International English Fluency Certificate — The Complete Curriculum

Teaching the IEFC: A Handbook for Staff

Marking Guide

REFERENCED

Marking standards are a part of the Assessment Handbook, not a book. Splitting them out would put the criteria in one volume and the assessments they mark in another, which is exactly the arrangement that produces inconsistent marking.

INTO

The IEFC Assessment Handbook

Rubric Handbook

REFERENCED

The sixty rubrics and their 307 criteria are printed in the Assessment Handbook beside the assignments they mark. A standalone rubric volume would be the same text without its context.

INTO

The IEFC Assessment Handbook

Teaching Strategies Handbook

REMOVED

Indistinguishable from Teaching the IEFC, which is already catalogued and already requires authoring. Two titles for one unwritten book would double the apparent size of the gap and halve the chance of either being written.

INTO

Teaching the IEFC: A Handbook for Staff

Competency Framework

REFERENCED

The six competencies with their descriptors and thresholds are the substance of the Academic Framework. Published alone they would state a framework whose mapping to assessment is empty, without the volume that says so.

INTO

The Academic Framework of the College

Assessment Framework

REFERENCED

The design of assessment belongs to the Academic Framework; its operation belongs to the Assessment Handbook. There is no third thing left for a separate volume to say.

INTO

The Academic Framework of the College

The IEFC Assessment Handbook

Academic Standards Manual

REFERENCED

Standards are declared by the framework and enforced by the regulations. A manual restating both would be a third statement of the same standards, and the first time the three disagreed nobody would know which governed.

INTO

The Academic Framework of the College

The Academic Regulations

Brand Standards

REFERENCED

The brand style guide is a chapter of the Production Specifications and the house identity is Part Three of the Publishing Constitution. Both are measured against the live design system; a third document would be the only one that could drift.

INTO

IEFC Production Specifications

WEC Press — The Publishing Constitution

Design Standards

REFERENCED

Identical in substance to Brand Standards, and resolved the same way for the same reason.

INTO

WEC Press — The Publishing Constitution

IEFC Production Specifications

Professional Communication Guide

REMOVED

The Professional English Handbook is this book. Two titles over five workplace modules would have to repeat all five.

INTO

The Professional English Handbook

Academic Writing in the IEFC

REMOVED

Previously catalogued as its own title covering Levels IV to VI. Folded into the Writing Companion, which covers all six levels: two books drawn from one strand would have repeated the senior half word for word. This is the only resolution that removed a title the Press had already catalogued rather than one it had been asked for.

PUBLISHING ORDER

Ranked by educational impact

The easiest book to produce next is almost never the one that most improves teaching. These are the 18 derivable titles, scored against declared criteria, in the order they should be published.

SCORE OUT OF 60 · WEIGHTED · REASONS ATTACHED

CRITERION	WEIGHT	SCALE
Who it reaches	×3	5 = every learner and teacher on the programme · 1 = a small subset
How often it is opened	×3	5 = in every session · 1 = once a year
What it makes possible	×4	5 = teaching or learning that currently cannot happen at all · 1 = a convenience
How hidden the material is now	×2	5 = exists but can only be reached by opening lessons one at a time · 1 = already published in another form

#	TITLE	SCORE	WHY IT SITS HERE
1	The IEFC Workbook	54	Every learner, every week. The practice a learner does alone is currently buried inside a 443-page teacher's book; a workbook is the difference between homework being set and homework being done.
2	The Classroom Activities Handbook	49	Four hundred and thirty activities a teacher can currently only find by reading the lesson they are in. The material is complete and completely unreachable.
3	The Lesson Planning Manual	47	Planning is the daily act of teaching. The stage structure and designed timings exist for all 114 lessons and have never been arranged for the person planning a week.
4	The IEFC Examination Guide	46	A candidate is entitled to know how they are marked before they are marked. At present the criteria exist only in the teacher's book.
5	The IEFC Vocabulary Companion	45	Vocabulary is the strand learners ask for most and the one most scattered — 276 stages across 168 items, with the recycling invisible.
6	A Grammar of the IEFC	42	A grammar reference keyed to the lessons that teach it. Useful daily, but grammar is the strand learners can most easily supplement elsewhere.
7	The IEFC Writing Companion	42	Writing is assessed in every level and taught in every lesson; the strand has never been gathered.

#	TITLE	SCORE	WHY IT SITS HERE
8	The IEFC Revision Guide	41	Revision is the one thing every learner does alone and unsupervised, and the material for it is the last stage of 114 separate lessons. Became derivable when the first lesson of the programme was given the revision stage it had never had. The volume gathers the strand rather than creating it, which is why it ranks below the workbook.
9	The Academic English Handbook	40	For learners entering English-medium study, the difference between passing and coping. Reaches fewer people than the coursebook strands.
10	Speaking and Interaction in the IEFC	39	Speaking is the skill learners most want and the strand that thins as the levels rise — 19 lessons at Level I, 10 at Level VI. The volume would make that shape visible, which is worth doing and is not the same as fixing it.
11	The IEFC Companion	38	The cross-reference graph and revision routes, already extracted for the flagship and printed inside it. A separate volume mostly helps planners.
12	The IEFC Digital Companion	36	The platform already serves this material; the companion improves access rather than creating it.
13	The Graduate Handbook	31	Read once, by every graduate, at the moment the award has to mean something to an employer. Low frequency, high consequence.
14	The Curriculum Framework	30	Read by reviewers and curriculum designers rather than by learners; important when it is needed, and needed rarely.
15	A Glossary of the IEFC	30	Fifty headwords defined in the sense the curriculum uses. Genuinely useful, rarely urgent.
16	The IEFC Digital Edition	30	A reflowable edition of a book that already exists and is already tagged.
17	The Award Architecture of the College	25	Read by employers and partner institutions verifying an award, and by nobody during teaching. High consequence at a single moment, low frequency.
18	The Prospectus	21	Read before enrolment, once. Real value, but it does not improve teaching or learning for anyone already here.

THE TIE, AND HOW IT WAS BROKEN

The Workbook and the Listening Scripts both score 54. The tie-break is declared rather than resolved by whichever happened to be listed first: the title that unblocks more goes ahead. The scripts unblock listening lessons that cannot currently run at all — there are no recordings, and the scripts have never been printed — while the workbook improves lessons that already can.

COVERAGE

Measured by what a lesson has, not by how many books exist

A publication count only goes up, and it goes up whether or not a learner is better served. This asks a different question of each of the 114 teaching lessons: is the resource needed for THIS lesson in a publication a reader can hold?

88% OF RESOURCES EXIST AS MATERIAL · 50% ARE IN AN ISSUED PUBLICATION · 0 OF 114 LESSONS ARE FULLY SERVED TODAY

WHAT THIS FIGURE DOES NOT MEASURE

Coverage measures availability: is the resource in a volume a reader can open. It does not measure usability. The Assessment Handbook ranked first for educational impact and moved published coverage by nought points, because every rubric it prints was already available — inside the 443-page Teacher's Edition, one rubric per lesson, sixty places. Availability was complete; consistent marking was impossible. The two instruments are kept apart rather than reconciled, because a coverage figure that rose whenever a book was published would be a publication count wearing a percentage sign.

WHY TWO NUMBERS AND NOT ONE

Material coverage is what the academic database holds. Published coverage is what a reader can actually open. Collapsing them would flatter the Press badly: vocabulary support has material coverage of 100 % and published coverage of nought — every lesson teaches lexis, and no issued volume gathers it. The distance between the two columns is this Press's backlog, stated as a number rather than as an intention.

RESOURCE	MATERIAL	PUBLISHED	BACKLOG	WHAT IT IS
Coursebook	100%	100%	—	The lesson itself, as the learner reads it.
Workbook	100%	0%	114	Practice the learner does without a teacher present.
Teacher guidance	100%	100%	—	Objectives, prerequisites and stage timings for the person teaching it.
Classroom activity	100%	100%	—	Something to do in the room: warm-up, guided practice, speaking task.
Listening script	100%	100%	—	A script the class can hear, since no recording exists.

RESOURCE	MATERIAL	PUBLISHED	BACKLOG	WHAT IT IS
Pronunciation support	100%	100%	–	Targets, examples and guidance for the sounds this lesson teaches.
Vocabulary support	100%	0%	114	The lexis taught, and where it is recycled.
Grammar reference	100%	0%	114	The structure presented, explained outside the lesson that presents it.
Assessment	100%	100%	–	A quiz and an assignment the lesson leads to.
Rubric	100%	100%	–	The criteria the assignment is marked against.
Answer key	100%	100%	–	The correct answers, in the teacher's edition only.
Extension activity	100%	0%	114	Work for a learner who finishes early or wants more.
Digital resource	100%	0%	114	The lesson served by the learning platform rather than on paper.
QR resource	0%	0%	–	A scannable link from the printed page to something live.
Professional application	9%	0%	10	How this lesson is used in working life.
Revision resource	100%	0%	114	Where the lesson sends the class back to, for revision.

By level, so a thin level cannot hide inside an average

LEVEL	LESSONS	MATERIAL	PUBLISHED
Level I	19	88%	50%
Level II	19	88%	50%
Level III	19	88%	50%
Level IV	19	89%	50%
Level V	19	88%	50%
Level VI	19	88%	50%

Coverage is even across the levels because the curriculum is: every level carries nineteen teaching lessons built to the same template. An uneven row here would mean a level had been authored to a different standard.

COMPLETION

A publication is not finished when its pages are

Every title tells its reader what to read before it, alongside it and after it. Where those volumes do not exist, the publication is a book with working pages and broken instructions — and nothing else would catch it, because the pages proof perfectly.

Educational integrity

No publication may exist because it could. Each of these names the educational problem it solves, and the one that could not name one was not published.

PUBLICATION	PROBLEM IT SOLVES	VERDICT
The IEFC Listening Scripts	A listening lesson cannot be run: 60 scripts exist and no recording does.	Necessary
The IEFC Pronunciation Handbook	The pronunciation strand can only be seen by opening 114 lessons one at a time.	Necessary
The Canon Index	A reader holding one volume cannot tell what to read next, and an editor cannot tell what is missing.	Necessary
A separate Coverage Report	None. The coverage dashboard belongs in the Canon Index, beside the titles it measures. A second volume would be a publication created to enlarge the catalogue, which is the thing this constitution forbids.	Not published
The Teacher's Edition	Solves several: the coursebook, the answer keys, the teaching guide and the apparatus. Split by READERSHIP into three editions rather than by problem, because a teacher needs all four in one volume and a learner must not have the second.	Split by readership

THE VOLUME THIS SECTION IS NOT

Everything above could have been a Coverage Report — a thirteenth title, with a cover and a spine, reporting on the other twelve. It is a section of this index instead, beside the titles it measures, because a publication created to enlarge the catalogue is precisely what the constitution it would be reporting on forbids.

Competency Framework

REFERENCED

NOT A SEPARATE VOLUME

The six competencies with their descriptors and thresholds are the substance of the Academic Framework. Published alone they would state a framework whose mapping to assessment is empty, without the volume that says so.

Assessment Framework

REFERENCED

NOT A SEPARATE VOLUME

The design of assessment belongs to the Academic Framework; its operation belongs to the Assessment Handbook. There is no third thing left for a separate volume to say.

GOVERNANCE

Regulations bind. They are made by a body with the standing to make them, and both academic bodies are established with nought members appointed. The text can be drafted; it cannot be published as regulations until somebody can adopt it.

GOVERNANCE

Quality assurance is a function, not a document: it requires a body that owns it, a cycle it runs on, and someone accountable for its findings. Both academic bodies are established with nought members appointed, so there is nobody for the manual to describe or bind.

Academic Standards Manual

REFERENCED

NOT A SEPARATE VOLUME

Standards are declared by the framework and enforced by the regulations. A manual restating both would be a third statement of the same standards, and the first time the three disagreed nobody would know which governed.

CLOSING

What this index is measured by

Not how many titles it contains. A canon is measured by whether a learner, a teacher, an examiner, an employer and a reviewer can each find everything they need inside one system — and by whether the system still hangs together when it doubles in size.

Of 62 placed titles, 13 are issued and 18 can be produced with no new curriculum and no institutional decision. 15 wait on academic authoring and each states how much; 15 wait on an authority the Press does not hold.

THE RECORD

RIGHTS AND PERMISSIONS

What you may do with this volume, and the little that is reserved.

Read it, print it, photocopy it, quote it and teach from it, freely and without asking. Do not stand it up as another institution's programme, sell it, or take the College's name off it.

GRANTED, WITHOUT ASKING AND WITHOUT CONDITIONS

- Read it, download it, keep it, and print it.
- Photocopy it, in whole or in part, for a class you teach.
- Quote from it, at any length reasonable to your argument, with the volume named.
- Cite it, set it on a reading list, and hand it to a colleague.
- Teach from it, including in another institution's classroom.
- Translate a passage for a learner who needs it in their own language.

RESERVED TO THE COLLEGE

- Adopting a volume, or the curriculum it sets out, as the syllabus or scheme of work of another institution, programme or course of study.
- Republishing, mirroring, hosting or redistributing a volume, whole or in part, anywhere other than from the College's own address.
- Selling a volume, charging for access to it, or bundling it with anything sold.
- Producing an adapted, abridged, re-sequenced or derivative curriculum from it, or a translated edition of a whole volume.
- Removing or obscuring the College's name, the running attribution, the edition mark, or this notice.
- Using a volume as training data for a machine-learning model, or ingesting it into a dataset offered to others.
- Issuing any award, certificate, level statement or transcript in reliance on these volumes. The qualification is the College's to confer and nobody else's.

Permission for any reserved use is given in writing, and is usually given. Write to info@worldwengcollege.co.uk with the volume, the use and the institution. A school that asks is a colleague; the College has no interest in refusing a teacher who wants to do the work properly.

TRACEABILITY

Every page of every volume carries the volume title, the College's name and an edition mark computed from the curriculum content of that edition. Material taken from these volumes is therefore identifiable as to volume, edition and page, whether it is reproduced, retyped or paraphrased around. The College reads the field it publishes into, and it will pursue a reserved use it finds unlicensed.

WHAT IS NOT CLAIMED

This volume is not encrypted and its text is not disabled against selection, extraction or printing. The College considers a document that a reader cannot copy to be a document a reader cannot use, and considers the permission flags a file can carry to be advisory rather than protective. The protection here is a stated licence, attribution on every page, and a traceable edition mark — not a lock.
